Demonstrations - Grand Amphithéâtre Foyer

The UK Acoustics Network (UKAN) are presenting two exhibits created by researchers from the Institute of Sound and Vibration Research (ISVR -University of Southampton, UK). These are demonstrations of multi-zone sound field reproduction, enabling you to experience the wonderful breadth of acoustics by visiting the arts, humanities and sciences.

The first exhibit, commissioned from artist Kevin Walker, demonstrates a multi-zone soundscape set in a variety of acoustic environments – you can stand still and let the soundscape take you on a journey, or walk around to follow your favourite sound. This original artwork is constructed from field recordings and digital synthesised sounds.

The second exhibit documents the history of acoustics from pre-history to the present day. French and English language soundtracks are available, just stand in your preferred sound zone – maybe you'll learn something new!

Révolutions Vocales Performed by Compagnie VocAliques

In the form of a burlesque conference, Révolutions Vocales presents the multiple compositions for the voice written since the 1960's.

Shedding light on the scores, analysing the various styles, sometimes settling scores (both musical and personal), three characters embark upon vocal and theatrical contests which slip into the interpretation of works reflecting an unprecedented range of vocal emotions and productions.

Compagnie VocAliques

LA COMPAGNIE VOCALIQUES is a French company that presents concerts featuring baroque, classical and contemporary vocal music: They notably mounted the opera Le Devin du Village by J.J. Rousseau. The company's research is also focused on the little-known repertoire of South American baroque, and its links with traditional music from Latin America. Their show "Revolutions Vocales" was on tour in 2015-2017 with the Jeunesses Musicales de France. The company has performed among others at the Palais des Beaux-Arts in Lille, at the Musée Mandet and for the National Monuments

The productions of Compagnie Vocaliques put particular emphasis on bridges between musical works and literary and poetic works. At the same time, the artists are involved in educational actions: thematic upstream of the shows on offer, awareness of contemporary, classical and Baroque repertoires, vocal and bodily expression, voice and art therapy.
